

- Gene Aloise is a Director in the Natural Resources and Environment team at GAO. He is GAO's recognized expert in international nuclear nonproliferation and safety/security issues and completed training on these subjects at the University of Virginia and Princeton University. His work for GAO has taken him to some of Russia's closed nuclear cities and the Chernobyl reactor in Ukraine as well as numerous nuclear facilities around the world and in the United States. Mr. Aloise has had years of experience developing, leading, and managing GAO domestic and international engagements. His diverse experience includes assignments with congressional committees as well as various offices within GAO. He has received numerous awards for his leadership and expertise including GAO's Meritorious Service and Distinguished Service Awards. Mr. Aloise received his bachelor's degree in political science/economics from Rowan University and holds a Master of Public Administration from Temple University. Mr. Aloise is also a graduate of the Senior Executive Fellows Program, John F. Kennedy School of Government, Harvard University. He has appeared on numerous TV and radio programs, including CBS's 60 Minutes, CNN, BBC, NPR, and has frequently been quoted in the NYT's, Washington Post and other major news media. Mr. Aloise has testified before Congress on national security and other matters over 50 times and is the Lead Executive responsible for the issuance of hundreds of reports with recommendations that have led to legislative improvements in Agency effectiveness and efficiency and over $5 Billion in financial savings.